Serving North Florida and Southern Georgia since 1963

STILL LOCALLY OWNED AND OPERATED

Our Story

In 1963, with wonderful compassion and a great sense of vision, Corey-Kerlin Funeral Home was founded in Jacksonville, Florida. Our founders were George S. Corey, Jr and William W. Kerlin who established the first Corey-Kerlin Funeral Home at 1426 Rowe Avenue. Ten years later they saw a need for a second location to better serve the residents of Northeast Florida. That new modern location was built at 940 Cesery Boulevard.

Recognizing the growing trend in Florida of memorialization by cremation, they added a Crematory near the first location in 1983.

Over the past few years both Mr. Corey and Mr. Kerlin have chosen to retire and in doing so sold their stock to the four current owners. In this way they knew that Corey-Kerlin Funeral Home would remain independent from the larger corporations and continue to be locally owned. All four owners are long time employees of Corey-Kerlin Funeral Home & Crematory. Rod Dixon, Jerry Nackashi, Mark Pittman and Robert Wood continue today to carry on the tradition of service and compassion that has earned the name Corey-Kerlin the highest respect among those we are honored to serve in our community, and our profession.

In addition to the four owners there are seven other Funeral Directors with over 150 years of Funeral Directing experience, six staff associates, a Chaplain and two pre-planning Counselors. Corey-Kerlin Funeral Home & Crematory is a full service Funeral establishment available to serve those in need with daily office hours from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. We are also available by phone 24 hours a day every day of the year.
